

MSAC Films at Main Street Gallery

Released June 18, 2019

The Maryland State Arts Council (MSAC) is collaborating with Wide Angle Youth Media to produce a series of videos highlighting the Arts across Maryland. These films will live on the MSAC website and will be shared with each county arts council as well.

Wide Angle Youth Media (WAYM) is a Baltimore-based nonprofit that provides media education services to youth ages 10-24. They provide video production services for clients ranging from local nonprofits up to Fortune 500 companies.

The Main Street Gallery was selected as one of the sites the team visited in Cambridge. They visited and filmed on June 18, 2019. As featured artist for May and June, cooperative member, Deborah Colborn was interviewed.
